you want to spit."

– Andy Partridge

"This man's talent is severely underrated.

Go Mike!"

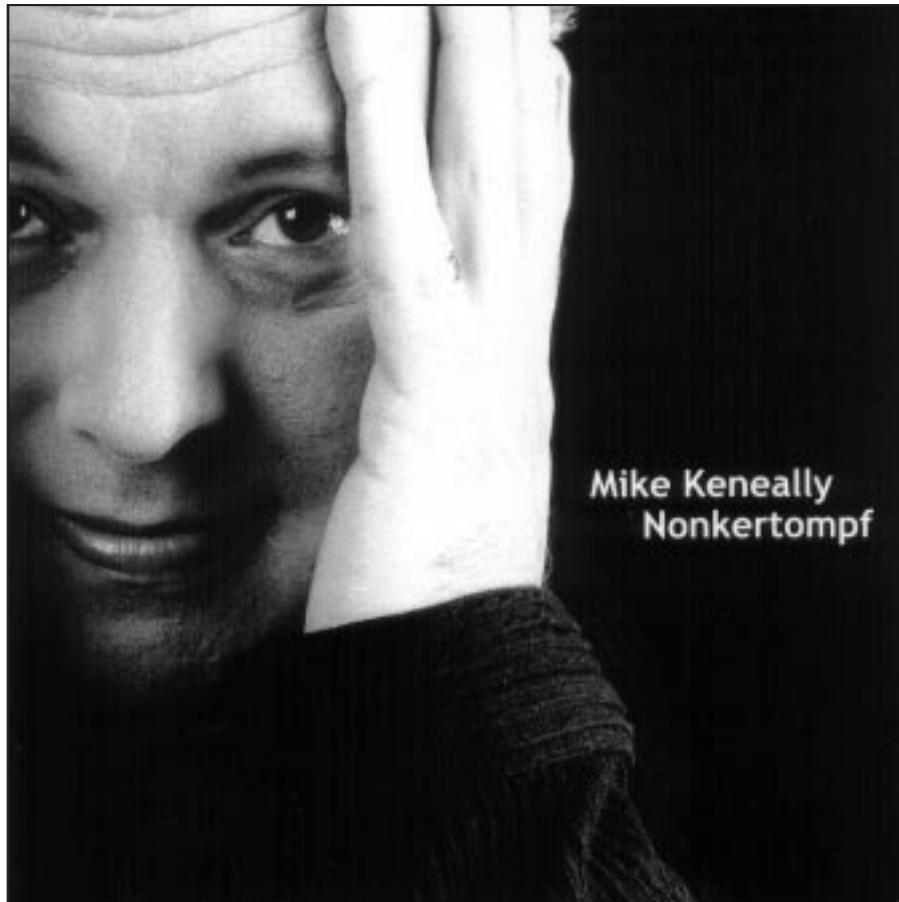

– Robert Fripp

"Mike is a multifaceted musical giant. He allows us to audibly witness him

You may know of Mike Keneally from his work as Frank Zappa's stunt guitarist or as Steve Vai's current right-hand man, but he's a uniquely magical performer, composer and recording artist in his own right.

Mike's seventh album, Nonkertompf, is an instrumental effort featuring Keneally playing everything, including guitars, keyboards, drums, sax, a stool and about a dozen other devices. It's a 74-minute stream-of-consciousness flight-of-fancy that takes the listener on an unparalleled sonic journey. Countless styles and moods are explored and seamlessly sewn together, always with extraordinary musical precision, rich orchestrational sense and a very big heart.

There is a tremendous Keneally following on the Internet, and Nonkertompf pre-sales via the Keneally website are bustling. Keneally's presence in print is strong, both in advertisements for Nonkertompf and in articles regarding this exciting new album and other current projects.

After two successful U.S. tours of his own in 1998, Keneally is set to embark on a worldwide tour with Steve Vai, during which he'll be aggressively promoting Nonkertompf on each stop of the journey.
